

Everyone with hemophilia can be the hero of their own story.

You don't have to save the city or score the winning goal to be a hero.

Maybe you learned an amazing new skill. Or you cheered up a friend who felt sad. Perhaps you taught your teammates about hemophilia so you can play a sport safely.

There are many reasons why you are the hero of your hemophilia story. For World Hemophilia Day, we are celebrating heroes like you.

Through storytelling, you have the power to make a difference and help others in your community.

Be creative. Along with a drawing to help tell your story, make sure you include:

1 WHERE THE STORY BEGINS:

Set up your story. Who you are? What makes you unique? What problem did you face?

2 HOW THE STORY UNFOLDS:

The middle of your story is where a challenge or a roadblock is faced. This is also known as the 'tipping point' of your story. Tells us what you did to overcome your challenge or break through your roadblock.

3 HOW YOUR STORY ENDS:

What goal did you reach? How has your life changed? What did you learn? And what can you teach others through your story?

Remember to include a theme: This is the main point of the story that you want to tell other people like "don't give up" or "you can do whatever you put your mind toward."

Coming Soon

There will be a place on Sanofihemophilia.com to submit your story. It will take us a little while to gather all of the stories, but once we do, we will put them together into an e-book with lots of other stories from young people who have hemophilia.

Stay tuned and we can't wait to hear how you are the hero of your hemophilia story!
